The Evaluation Process...

1. Assess eligibility

- Is the resource an excluded type?

2. Assess significance

- What are the heritage values?
- Which significance criteria apply?

3. Assess integrity

- Does the site still communicate its significance?

1. Assess Eligibility... (Is the resource an excluded type?)

Type 1 Exclusions

(no exceptions)

- Places outside municipal jurisdiction
- Places situated in an historical park or village
- Small movable objects
- Reconstructions
- Human remains

Type 2 Exclusions

(special exceptions)

- Cemeteries
- Birthplaces or graves

Designation

Designation is a tool municipalities use to conserve significant places. A Municipal Historic Resource cannot be altered without the municipality's permission. The law requires that the owner (or lessee) of a Municipal Historic Resource obtain written permission from the municipality before altering the site in any way.

Before Designation

Preserving a historic place through designation requires a long-term partnership between the property's owner and the municipality; a partnership based upon understanding the heritage value of the place.

The Designation Process

Step 1: The Notice of Intention

Step 2: Designation Bylaw

Step 3: After the Bylaw is Passed

Step 4: Listing on the Alberta Register of Historic Places
